21st Annual Conference Tampa, Florida October 9-11, 2014

American Association for Teaching and Curriculum

Welcome

PRESIDENT'S GREETINGS

October 2014

On behalf of the AATC Executive Committee and myself, welcome to Tampa and AATC's 21st year—We have matured and come of age as an organization at a time when teaching and curriculum are hot political topics. Here in Tampa we want to tone down the rhetoric of the election cycle and focus on scholarly discussions of curriculum, teaching and learning in an atmosphere of collegiality. AATC conferences are known for thoughtful, deep discussions including all the participants across the three days. I hope you will arrive early and stay late adding your expertise to the conversations and presentations.

This year's conference features two renowned keynote speakers; our luncheon speaker, Peter Taubman and our dinner speaker, Gloria Ladson-Billings. In addition we have Michael and Ilene Berson joining us for a conversation on cybersecurity and education. Additional special sessions we can look forward to include retrospective panels honoring the long careers and contributions of the late Elliot Eisner and Maxine Greene, both former AATC keynote speakers. Their strong voices in support of quality, meaningful education are already missed by the academy. We are also featuring informal chat special sessions to provide an opportunity for early career and graduate students to interact more deeply with our guest speakers. The graduate student luncheon has been replaced, as requested, with a breakfast in an earlier time slot on the program. We will continue our combined Writer's Workshop/Writing for Curriculum and Teaching Dialogue session.

We congratulate our O.L. Davis Book Award recipient, William Reese for Testing Wars in the Public Schools: A Forgotten History. The Francis Hunkins Distinguished Article award winners in the category of Curriculum to Elliot Eisner (posthumous) and Susan Freeman for Notes on Composing and Composition and in the category of Teaching to Houman Harouni for The Risking of Observations in the Classroom: Teacher as Cultural Critic. Our John Laska Distinguished Dissertation Award in Curriculum to Benjamin Ingman, University of Colorado-Denver for Rethinking the adventure education experience: An inquiry of meanings, culture, and educational virtue and in Teaching to Jessica Meehan, Tarleton State University for Castañeda v. Pickard: The struggle for an equitable education - one family's experience with resistance.

It is my fervent hope that the sessions and conversations during this conference in Tampa, coupled with our wonderful journal, Curriculum and Teaching Dialogue, which you will take home with you for continued exploration into the world of teaching and curriculum, help to refresh your knowledge base for the coming year.

Enjoy the conference.

Barbara Slater Stern AATC President 2014

AATC History The American Association for Teaching and Curriculum

www.aatchome.org

In the United States, most areas of scholarly investigation emerged as recognized fields of study about a hundred years ago. One of the events that made this possible was the founding of national learned societies devoted to the advancement of scholarship in their respective fields. Examples of the newly formed learned societies are the American Historical Association (1884), the American Economic Association (1885), the American Philosophical Association (1901), the American Political Science Association (1903) and the American Academy of Religion (1909).

The scholarly field of teaching and curriculum, however, was not represented in the formation of the early American Scholarly organizations, even though university departments that encompassed both the scholarly and the professional study of teaching and curriculum had been established prior to the end of the nineteenth century. Several types of groups were formed eventually including those concerned primarily with the rights and responsibilities of teachers (unions), ones recognizing honor performance (e.g. Kappa Delta Pi) and organizations whose members' interests are primarily K-12 content and methods (e.g. ASCD, IRA) or had a narrow focus in one field of education, such as philosophy or education policy.

An important historical event in the development of organizations dealing with the scholarly field of teaching and curriculum was the founding of the American Association for Teaching and Curriculum (AATC) on October 1, 1993. The members of the AATC believed that the time was long overdue to recognize teaching and curriculum as a basic field of scholarly study, to constitute a national learned society for the scholarly field of teaching and curriculum (teaching is the more inclusive concept; curriculum is an integral part of teaching-the "what to teach" aspect). In the larger universities, faculty members identified with this field of scholarly study typically affiliated with departments of curriculum and instruction, teacher education, or elementary and secondary education. Jack Laska became the first secretary-treasurer of AATC. AATC continues to produce scholarship in teaching and curriculum and serve the general public through its conferences, journals, and the interaction of its members.

The purpose of the organization as originally defined in Article 1, Section 2 of the AATC Constitution:

To promote the scholarly study of teaching and curriculum

The Twenty-first Annual Conference is dedicated to advancing the ideals of the Association and its purpose.
