WELCOME

President's Greetings

On behalf of the AATC Executive Council, I extend a warm welcome to all conference attendees. Thank you for coming to Grand Rapids, Michigan, a city that has long been a place where people come together. From its early history when the area was an important gathering place for members of the Hopewell people to the present time, the area has cultivated a rich and vibrant history that speaks to the importance of the past and the promise of the future. It is my fervent hope that as we gather in this wonderful city, we will take time to reflect upon the theme of AATC's 23rd annual conference and consider how each of us can contribute to a more socially just and peaceful tomorrow.

This year's conference comes at a time when national discourse on all too many topics has descended not into reasoned and respectful dialog, but rather harshly drawn lines that are animated by hatred, distrust, and frenzied support of entrenched positions. As the Executive Council began planning this year's conference, we were thoughtful and intentional about the ways in which we, as an organization that supports diversity in its many forms, approached the conference theme and the traditions of AATC. Given the way that we value dialog, we have included AATC CROSS TALK sessions that are scattered throughout the conference program. These informal meetings aim to provide a place where we can discuss the relationships between information and ideas from numerous sessions in a setting that creates bridges between and among ideas and AATC members.

In addition to wonderful breakouts sessions on a range of topics too vast to mention, AATC welcomes Dr. Ken Saltman as our featured keynote speaker. Dr. Saltman is a Professor in the Department of Educational Leadership at the University of Massachusetts, Dartmouth. His research interests are not only prolific, but widely recognized as bringing a distinct and in depth analysis to the pressing challenges related to the economic, cultural, and political dimensions of school privatization. Dr. Saltman's research has resulted in numerous books, including The Politics of Education: A Critical Introduction, Neoliberalism, Education, Terrorism, and The Failure of Corporate School Reform (the 2011 American Educational Studies Critics Choice Book Award winner). I am sure that we will all learn and benefit from Dr. Saltman's contributions to the intellectual vitality of AATC's 2016 annual conference.

It is also my pleasure to acknowledge several recipients of AATC awards. First, I would like to congratulate Jerry Rosiek and Kathy Kinslow, winners of the 2016 O.L. Davis Jr. Book Award. Their book, Resegregation as Curriculum: The Meaning of the New Racial Segregation in US Public Schools, is, as one committee member noted, a work that "takes policy (segregration/desegregation) and moves it to the realm of curriculum" by considering the "content of what children are taught in schools." The O.L. Davis Award is given in recognition of scholarship that adds substantively to the body of knowledge about practices and theories of curriculum and teaching. Second, it is my distinct pleasure to congratulate the two recipients, Rhonda Webb (Curriculum) and Kari Colley (Teaching), of the John L. Laska Dissertation Awards. And finally, I would recognize Paul Parkison and Elizabeth Dorman as the winners of the Hunkins Distinguished Article Award. The contributions of all of these dedicated educators truly move our field forward and give us ample opportunity to reflect upon the state of our profession and the promise it holds.

In my brief message, Kinship and Hope, in the current edition of Curriculum and Teaching Dialogue, I noted the importance of AATC in my professional and intellectual development. As I enter my second decade as part of the AATC family, I can truly say the annual conference is a place and time where I rejuvenate my spirit, reconnect with lifelong friends, and create new intellectual partnerships that encourage me even in the dark days of what appears to be a long educational winter. It is my deep hope you will benefit from the conference as much as I and that the sessions, conversations, and interactions during the conference will inspire you to make the world of teaching and curriculum a better place for all.

And finally, conference attendees come from a wide-range of backgrounds. Take the time to meet someone, to enjoy the conversations that will lead us into the future, and to make a friend, mentor, or colleague who will sustain you even as national dialog continues to question the power, promise, and purpose of public education.

AATC HISTORY

The American Association for Teaching and Curriculum www.aatchome.org

In the United States, most areas of scholarly investigation emerged as recognized fields of study about a hundred years ago. One of the events that made this possible was the founding of national learned societies devoted to the advancement of scholarship in their respective fields. Examples of the newly formed learned societies are the American Historical Association (1884), the American Economic Association (1885), the American Philosophical Association (1901), the American Political Science Association (1903) and the American Academy of Religion (1909). The scholarly field of teaching and curriculum, however, was not represented in the formation of the early American Scholarly organizations, even though university departments that encompassed both the scholarly and the professional study of teaching and curriculum had been established prior to the end of the nineteenth century. Several types of groups were formed eventually including those concerned primarily with the rights and responsibilities of teachers (unions), ones recognizing honor performance (e.g. Kappa Delta Pi) and organizations whose members' interests are primarily K-12 content and methods (e.g. ASCD, IRA) or had a narrow focus in one field of education, such as philosophy or education policy. An important historical event in the development of organizations dealing with the scholarly field of teaching and curriculum was the founding of the American Association for Teaching and Curriculum (AATC) on October 1, 1993. The members of the AATC believed that the time was long overdue to recognize teaching and curriculum as a basic field of scholarly study, to constitute a national learned society for the scholarly field of teaching and curriculum (teaching is the more inclusive concept; curriculum is an integral part of teaching-the "what to teach" aspect). In the larger universities, faculty members identified with this field of scholarly study typically affiliated with departments of curriculum and instruction, teacher education, or elementary and secondary education. Jack Laska became the first secretary-treasurer of AATC. AATC continues to produce scholarship in teaching and curriculum and serve the general public through its conferences, journals, and the interaction of its members. The purpose of the organization as originally defined in Article 1, Section 2 of the AATC Constitution: To promote the scholarly study of teaching and curriculum The Twenty-second Annual Conference is dedicated to advancing the ideals of the Association and its purpose. The intent of AATC sessions is to engage conversation and explore new ideas and share information. The founders of AATC wanted conversations to begin and continue long after the conference is over. The arrangement is a deliberate intent to avoid the common practice of "Speak and Run" which has permeated so many of the professional 5 organizations. Hopefully, attendees will want to stay and engage for the entire conference. Much can be learned! Enjoy the conference.

Welcome Reception

6:00-7:00pm Thursday, October 13 n Salon A/B Cash Bar and Light Hors d'Oeuvres

KEYNOTE SPEAKER: KENNETH SALTMAN

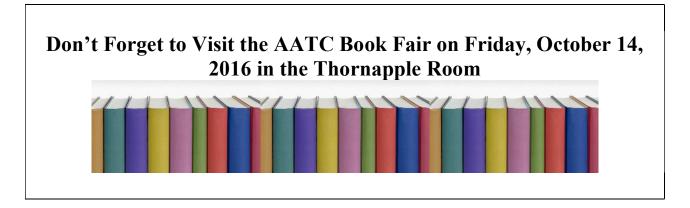

Kenneth J. Saltman is a Professor in the Department of Educational Leadership where he teaches courses in the Educational Leadership and Policy Studies PhD program. He received his PhD and MA in Curriculum and Instruction from Pennsylvania State University and his BA Honors in Philosophy from McGill University. He grew up in southern New England and prior to graduate school taught English as a Second Language in Pusan, South Korea. He taught graduate and undergraduate courses at DePaul University in Chicago and St. Joseph's University in Philadelphia.

Research Interests

His research interests include sociology of education, philosophy of education, educational politics and policy, the cultural politics and political economy of education and mass media, critical pedagogy, cultural studies, critical theory, globalization and education, educational leadership, curriculum theory, the militarization of schools and society, and philosophy of sport and the body. He has been a prolific author and early outspoken critic of what has been termed neoliberal educational restructuring or corporate school reform.

Dr. Saltman's scholarship has been distinct for bringing together an analysis of the economic, cultural, and political dimensions of public school privatization, situating it in terms of broader social trends and global struggles. He is the author most recently of The Politics of Education: A Critical Introduction (Paradigm 2014), The Failure of Corporate School Reform (Paradigm Publishers 2012), and The Gift of Education: Venture Philanthropy and Public Education (Palgrave Macmillan 2010) which was awarded a 2011 American Educational Studies Critics Choice Book Award. He also recently co-authored Toward a New Common School Movement (Paradigm 2014) and Neoliberalism, Education, Terrorism (Paradigm 2014). He received a Fulbright Scholarship on Globalization and Culture.

AWARD WINNERS

Dr. Kari Colley

Student of Dr. Bruce Uhrmacher, University of Denver Cultivating Creativity: The Practice of Teaching for Creativity in the Elementary Classroom

This dissertation will illuminate the practice of teaching for four exemplary elementary school teachers who cultivate creativity in their students.

Dr. Rhonda Webb

Student of Chara Haeussler Bohan, Georgia State University Red, White, and Black: The Meaning of Loyalty in Georgia Education

This historical dissertation describes ways in which the Red Scare and Cold War eras impacted education from the 1930s through the 1960s.

Hunkins Distinguished Article Award

Elizabeth Dorman: Building Teachers' Social-Emotional Competence Through Mindfulness

Practices

Abstract: Recent research suggests that building teachers' social-emotional competence, including via mindfulness training, can improve teacher's overall effectiveness and well-being, help equip them with the tools needed to respond to the unique stressors of the teaching profession, and potentially reduce burnout and attrition. This article reports on a longitudinal action research study of integrating mindfulness practices into my teacher education courses. I discussion how the process evolved over time and present key themes in student perceptions of the practice. This study has implication for any practitioners interested in mindfulness incorporated into education settings.

Paul Parkison: Catharsis in Education: Rationalizing and Reconciling

Abstract: The article discusses research which examined the education policy related to standards, testing and accountability. Topics discussed include the limitation in the democratic curriculum development process, restrictive policies for teachers and students and deconstruction of the rationalization of contemporary education policies with the use of a qualitative discourse analysis.

Resegregation as Curriculum: The Meaning of the New Racial Segregation in US Public Schools by Jerry Rosiek and Kathy Kinslow

Resegregation as Curriculum offers a compelling look at the formation and implementation of school resegregation as contemporary education policy, as well as its impact on the meaning of schooling for students subject to such policies. Working from a ten-year study of a school district undergoing a process of resegregation, Rosiek and Winslow examine the ways this "new racial segregation" is rationalized and the psychological and sociological effects it has on the children of all races in that community. Drawing on critical race theory, agential realism, and contemporary pragmatist semiotics, the authors expose how these events functioned as a hidden curriculum that has profound repercussions on the students' identity formation, self-worth, conceptions of citizenship, and social hope. This important account of racial stratification of educational opportunity expands our understanding of the negative consequences of racial segregation in schools and serves as a critical resource for academics, educators, and experts who are concerned about the effects of resegregation nationwide.

Kevnote Presentation—Ken Saltman

Corporate Power and Corporeal Control: Aspirations for Agency and Democracy in the Era of Educational Repression

Kenneth J. Saltman is a Professor in the Department of Educational Leadership where he teaches courses in the Educational Leadership and Policy Studies PhD program. He received his PhD and MA in Curriculum and Instruction from Pennsylvania State University and his BA Honors in Philosophy from McGill University. He grew up in southern New England and prior to graduate school taught English as a Second Language in Pusan, South Korea. He taught graduate and undergraduate courses at DePaul University in Chicago and St. Joseph's University in Philadelphia.

Research Interests

His research interests include sociology of education, philosophy of education, educational politics and policy, the cultural politics and political economy of education and mass media, critical pedagogy, cultural studies, critical theory, globalization and education, educational leadership, curriculum theory, the militarization of schools and society, and philosophy of sport and the body. He has been a prolific author and early outspoken critic of what has been termed neoliberal educational restructuring or corporate school reform.

Dr. Saltman's scholarship has been distinct for bringing together an analysis of the economic, cultural, and political dimensions of public school privatization, situating it in terms of broader social trends and global struggles. He is the author most recently of The Politics of Education: A Critical Introduction (Paradigm 2014), The Failure of Corporate School Reform (Paradigm Publishers 2012), and The Gift of Education: Venture Philanthropy and Public Education (Palgrave Macmillan 2010) which was awarded a 2011 American Educational Studies Critics Choice Book Award. He also recently co-authored Toward a New Common School Movement (Paradigm 2014) and Neoliberalism, Education, Terrorism (Paradigm 2014). He received a Fulbright Scholarship on Globalization and Culture.

Curriculum and Teaching Dialogue Volume 18, Numbers 1 & 2, 2016

A Volume in Curriculum and Teaching Dialogue,
American Association for Teaching and Curriculum (AATC)

Editors: David J. Flinders, Indiana University

Christy McConnell Moroye, University of Northern Colorado

Associate Editor: Kate Kauper, Cornell College

Curriculum and Teaching Dialogue (CTD) is a publication of the American Association of Teaching and Curriculum (AATC), a national learned society for the scholarly field of teaching and curriculum. The field includes those working on the theory, design and evaluation of educational programs at large. At the university level, faculty members identified with this field are typically affiliated with the departments of curriculum and instruction, teacher education, educational foundations, elementary education, secondary education, and higher education. CTD promotes all analytical and interpretive approaches that are appropriate for the scholarly study of teaching and curriculum. In fulfillment of this mission, CTD addresses a range of issues across the broad fields of educational research and policy for all grade levels and types of educational programs.
